State announces $1 million matching grant for Benton Harbor's Riverview Drive project

The city of Benton Harbor has received a $1 million matching grant from the Michigan Infrastructure Office to support its $22 million federal BUILD Grant for the city's waterfront infrastructure project.

Congressman Bill Huizenga announced this month the city is receiving nearly $23 million from the U.S. Department of Transportation to fix up the Riverview Drive Corridor.

The Michigan Infrastructure Office's Technical Assistance Center helped the city prepare its federal grant application by providing grant writing and benefit-cost analysis support. It says the project is intended to improve transportation, reduce flooding, and spur economic development along the city's waterfront.

Planned improvements include removing and realigning flood-prone sections of Riverview Drive, raising roads, upgrading stormwater infrastructure, and improving emergency access. The project also calls for construction of a new riverfront promenade, trails linking neighborhoods and the downtown to the waterfront, and expanded green space.

Mayor Marcus Muhammad says the BUILD Grant "ia a once-in-a-generation investment" that will make the waterfront safer, more accessible, and more resilient to flooding while creating new opportunities for residents, businesses, and visitors.

Michigan Works warns over state cuts to job training grants

The organization that administers Michigan's Going PRO Talent Fund in Southwest Michigan says state budget cuts to the popular workforce training program could make it more difficult for local employers—particularly manufacturers—to invest in employee training and apprenticeship programs.

Michigan's new fiscal year budget reduces funding for the Going PRO Talent Fund from about $47 million to $25 million, a cut of roughly 42 percent. The program helps employers pay for short-term, employer-driven job

Our Airport Is a Competitive Advantage. Let's Keep It That Way.

Last week I shared that the Southwest Michigan Regional Chamber has endorsed the renewal of the Southwest Michigan Regional Airport millage on the August 4 ballot. This week, I want to focus on the reason that matters most to an organization like ours: Regional Competitiveness.

Regions do not win investment on charm alone. When a company evaluates where to build a facility, expand an operation, or relocate jobs, its site selectors work through a checklist—workforce, utilities, highways, rail, broadband, and airport access. A capable regional airport is not a luxury item on that list. It is a threshold requirement. Communities that have one get a longer look. Communities that don't get quietly crossed off the list before local leaders ever know they were being considered.

Right now, Southwest Michigan makes the list. More than 400 companies fly into our regional airport every year rather than driving two hours from Chicago or Grand Rapids. Some are large manufacturers moving time-critical parts on a deadline. Many more are small businesses reaching customers and suppliers, consultants scoping out sites, and families visiting the region. Every one of those arrivals is someone choosing to do business here instead of somewhere else.

And the airport doesn't just attract businesses—it's home to them. More than thirty local small businesses operate at the field, and Cirrus Aircraft, one of the nation's leading personal aircraft manufacturers, expanded its presence here in 2022. When a company of that caliber chooses to invest and grow at our airport, it is a vote of confidence in Southwest Michigan.

The numbers bear this out. The Michigan Department of Transportation estimates the airport contributes more than $65 million to our local economy, and it supports over 10,000 jobs across the businesses that rely on it. But here is the figure I find most compelling: as a working asset, more than 80 percent of the airport's operating costs are covered by the businesses and pilots who use it.

Consider how rare that is. We don't expect our parks, libraries, roads, police, or fire departments to pay their own way. We support them because they make our communities safer and better places to live—and none come close to covering 80 percent of their own costs. By that standard, the airport may be the best bargain in local government. For most homeowners, the millage costs less than $20 a year—about the price of a few cups of coffee. Few community investments deliver so much, for so many, at so modest a cost.

Airport leadership has also been clear that beyond covering operations, millage funds could position the airport for future growth—particularly new hangars. That matters because hangar space is what allows an airport to serve more companies and more aircraft, which in turn deepens the airport's business base and reduces reliance on public support over time. It is the right kind of cycle: capacity attracts users, users generate revenue, revenue sustains the asset.

Now consider the alternative. An airport that declines for want of maintenance doesn't fail overnight—it fades over time. Pavement deteriorates. Services get cut. Users drift to other fields. And here is the part that should give every voter pause: you cannot rebuild a regional airport once it closes. The runway, the infrastructure, and the decades of federal and state investment that made it possible would be gone for good. All of it protected—or surrendered—for about $20 a year per household.

Ten years ago, our community faced this same question, and voters kept our airport flying. Today that responsibility is ours again. Southwest Michigan is competing—for jobs, for investment, for the next generation of families who will choose to build their lives here. The communities that win that competition protect the assets that make them competitive. Our airport is one of those assets.

A previous generation of voters built this advantage and handed it to us. On August 4, we decide what we hand to the next one. Help keep our region competitive by voting YES on the Southwest Michigan Regional Airport Millage.

The Top Five Must-Ask Questions When Getting a Quote for a New HVAC System

Investing in a new heating, ventilation, and air conditioning (HVAC) system represents one of the largest home improvement expenses many families will face. With energy costs fluctuating and comfort needs evolving, securing a fair and comprehensive quote is essential. Yet many homeowners accept bids without probing deeper, potentially leading to oversized or undersized units, hidden costs, or systems that fail to deliver long-term value. Asking the right questions upfront can prevent regret and ensure the selected system matches both the home's requirements and the budget.

The first critical question centers on proper sizing. Inquire whether the contractor will perform a Manual J load calculation to determine the appropriate system capacity. This industry-standard assessment evaluates factors such as square footage, insulation levels, window placement, and local climate patterns. An incorrectly sized unit—too large or too small—can result in inefficiency, frequent cycling, uneven temperatures, and premature wear. A professional who skips this step may be prioritizing quick sales over optimal performance.

Second, ask for detailed efficiency ratings of the recommended equipment. Focus on metrics like the Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio (SEER) for air conditioners and the Annual Fuel Utilization Efficiency (AFUE) for furnaces. Higher ratings generally translate to lower utility bills over time, though they often come with a higher upfront cost. Understanding these figures helps compare options objectively and project potential energy savings, which can offset the initial investment within a few years through reduced consumption.

Third, request a detailed quote that itemizes all aspects of the project. This should specify the exact equipment models, removal and disposal of the existing system, any ductwork or electrical modifications, permits, and additional components. A thorough, itemized document allows for accurate side-by-side comparisons across contractors and eliminates ambiguity that could lead to unexpected charges during the installation process.

Fourth, delve into warranty coverage for both the equipment and the workmanship. Manufacturers typically offer parts warranties ranging from five to ten years or more when properly registered, but labor warranties from the installer can vary significantly. Clarify what is covered, the duration of protection, and any conditions required to maintain validity, such as annual maintenance. Strong warranties provide peace of mind and reflect the contractor's confidence in their installation quality.

Finally, ask about the recommended maintenance plan and long-term service support. A quality HVAC system requires regular tune-ups to sustain efficiency and extend its lifespan, often 15 to 20 years or more with proper care. Inquire about available service agreements, response times for repairs, and whether the company stocks common parts for the installed models. This ensures ongoing support beyond the initial sale and helps protect the investment.

By posing these five questions, homeowners empower themselves to make informed decisions rather than relying solely on price. Comparing multiple bids with consistent details reveals true value and reputable contractors. In an era of rising energy expenses, a well-chosen HVAC system enhances comfort while delivering efficiency and reliability for decades. Taking time to ask now can yield substantial dividends in performance and savings down the road.

No Other Rock

What do you fear losing? What have you lost that has depleted your emotional storehouse? What would make life empty if it were missing and you would feel incomplete without it?

If God wasn't the answer in all of these, then whatever you did answer may be an idol. An idol is something that we place higher than God in our heart's ranking system or life priorities.

Big emotional highs and lows from anything besides God can be an idol indicator. For example, I love my family, and any thought of them not being with me can leave me feeling empty. God gave them to me as a great gift, but they can never fulfill my needs like God does.

God encourages. "Do not tremble, and do not be frightened. Did I not announce this to you, and declare it already long ago? You are my witnesses. Is there any god except me? There is no other Rock. I am not aware of any other." (Isaiah 44:8)

God declares, "Do not tremble." Many things can cause me stress, or the prospect of losing them may frighten me. But God bids my fear to cease.

Why? There is only one God. He is the only thing that satisfies. There is no other.

He is a Rock. A rock is something sturdy and strong. Surviving a thunderstorm with high winds without protection is terrifying. Perhaps you can recall such a storm, as one we had here in SW Michigan over the July 4th weekend. A house of stone would provide safer protection than a timber house. Stone is stronger. God is much stronger than anything.

God is the only one strong enough to take on your life's fears. Jesus was the only one powerful enough to withstand the crushing blows of your sin and guilt. No person can do that for you. No house or boat can give you peace with God. No amount of money can buy happiness and security like the Rock. While those things can bring joy, they also have stress, which limits the joy.

Jesus already paid for your security and becomes your Rock. No fear can penetrate a full life with him. He already lived it for you, so it is yours now. This is the security of the Rock.

Your security is not just for you alone, but as a witness to others. God made the lives of the Israelites a witness to his saving strength. Nations who saw them were introduced to the true God. Those who see your peaceful demeanor notice and covet it. You can tell them about your Rock. You're secure forever in him.

Things like family, houses, or money can bring joy but also bring stress that limits it. Where in your life have you mistaken temporary joys for lasting security? How does resting in Christ change the way you hold on to those blessings?

Prayer: Lord of all, you are the only true God. Secure my heart with your strength and grant me peace in your mercy. Amen.

training that upgrades workers' skills, supports apprenticeships and strengthens Michigan's skilled workforce.

Jennifer Deamud, Executive Vice President of Workforce for Michigan Works! Berrien, Cass, Van Buren, said the organization is grateful lawmakers preserved the program, even with reduced funding.

"While the reduction in funding is certainly disappointing, we are appreciative that the funding remained part of the state's final budget," Deamud said.

Michigan Works! Berrien, Cass, Van Buren has consistently been successful in securing Going PRO grants for employers across the region, helping businesses provide training that might otherwise be difficult to afford.

Deamud said the reduced funding could leave some employers reluctant to make those investments on their own.

"My concern is that many employers may be hesitant to invest the capital necessary to train and develop their employees without the support that these funds have traditionally provided," she said. "A reduction in available funding could limit their ability to address critical workforce needs, strengthen employee retention, and build the skilled talent pipeline our regional economy depends on."

Manufacturers are expected to feel the greatest impact.

"The employers most affected by this reduction will be those in the manufacturing sector," Deamud said. "Manufacturing is a cornerstone of our regional economy, and many of these employers have relied on Going PRO Talent Fund support to offset the costs of training and developing their workforce, particularly through Registered Apprenticeship programs."

"With the reduction in available funding, some manufacturers may no longer have the financial flexibility within their budgets to sustain these investments," Deamud said. "As a result, employers may be forced to scale back or delay apprenticeship and workforce development initiatives, ultimately impacting their ability to build and retain a skilled workforce."

The Going PRO Talent Fund is administered statewide through local Michigan Works! agencies and provides competitive grants that reimburse employers for approved training costs. While community colleges and other education providers often deliver the training, grants are awarded to employers to help develop the skills their businesses need.

State workforce officials estimate the smaller appropriation will mean hundreds fewer employers receive grants this year, with approximately 10,000 fewer Michigan workers expected to benefit from Going PRO-funded training than in previous years.

For Southwest Michigan, where manufacturers remain among the region's largest employers, local workforce leaders say the reduction comes as companies continue to face challenges recruiting and retaining skilled workers.

bridge project, and now they've reached that amount, unlocking a $45,000 match from the Michigan Economic Development Corporation. That means $90,000 is available for the project.

Hamilton says this bridge will connect several recreational attractions in the Stevensville area.

"There is Kerlikowske Park, which is a village owned park, about 10 acres, and the Sarett Nature Center property is another 10 acres, and then Hickory Creek Park is about a three-acre village park where they just built a new pavilion," Hamilton said. "There's a playground, dog park, really nice park. And then the Jung Nature Trail, which is the 12 acres. It's owned by the Lakeshore school district."

Hamilton says right now, Kerlikowske Park and the Sarett Nature Center property lead walkers toward the creek, but then stop. With the pedestrian bridge, walkers will be able to keep going.

Hamilton says Friends of Berrien County Trails is grateful to every donor, supporter, and community member who shared the campaign. It's also thanking project Sarett Nature Center and the Village of Stevensville for helping make the vision possible.

Construction on the new pedestrian bridge could start this fall if the grant funds and permits are received in time.

Soothing '60's surf sounds

We're trying to plan a get-together with ALL of our kids and grandkids for the end of this year. The target location that's risen to the top of everyone's list is Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

If this comes to fruition, I hope that beforehand someone finds my lost CDs featuring soothing sounds of the seashore – specifically, the CD collection called "The Lost Legends of Surf Guitar." (Hmmmmm, I guess they got "lost" before I lost them.) Hearing a wealth of 1960's "surf rock" tunes will help me both get and keep a vacation frame of mind, while on my trip. (By the way, a tip of a tropical print bucket hat [popular with 1960s surfers] to No. 2 son for introducing me to these tunes. He sampled, fell in love with and purchased volumes I-IV of "Lost Legends." After saving the CDs on his portable music-player thingie, he gave them to me. Please don't tell him I can't presently find them!)

I gotta tell ya, I loved 'em even before I ever listened to 'em. For starters, the CDs were produced by Sundazed Music, Inc., which is based in a town called – honest – Coxsackie, NY, located on the shore of that Shangri-La of surfdom, the Hudson River.

But that's just the tip of the surfboard. I knew instantly I'd love anything by bands named "The Del-Vetts," or "Johnny & the Shy Guys," or "Zorba and the Greeks." I knew I'd totally dig tunes called "Verti-go-go," or "Banzai Washout," or "Bongo Shutdown."

Plus, the liner notes are a gas, man, full of intimate details of surf bands whose careers would rise, peak and fall in the space of about a week-and-a-half. For example, "Lost Legends of Surf Guitar (from now on LLOSG) IV" features a tune called "Beachbound," by The Cornells. I listened to "Beachbound" at least a half-dozen times on beach vacations, but I can't bring to mind a single note. (A LOT of this surf music tends to sound alike. . .not that there's anything wrong with that.) But I can tell you that one of The Cornells was the son of TV star Art Linkletter. Another was the son of Charlie Correll, who played "Andy" on the "Amos & Andy" radio show. Another was the son of Loretta Young, Oscar-winner, and a founder of the legendary rock band Moby Grape. The son, that is, not Loretta.

LLOSG II features a couple of songs by Jerry Cole and His Spacemen. Possibly. The tunes might actually be by Jerry Cole and His Stingers. Or Jerry Cole and the Country Boys. Possibly even Jerry Kole and the Strokers. These are just a few of the 20-some bands that Jerry Cole led or performed with, each of which lasted about a week-and-a-half.

Jerry was born in a town world-famous for its surfing culture – Green Bay, Wisconsin. Oddly, the Badger State spawned a number of surf bands, including LLOSG like The Teensmen and The Tornados, not to be confused with The Tornadoes, from Redlands, California.

On "LLOSG II," one of these twister bands plays a song called "Shootin' Beavers." Seems like a dopey name for a surf song. Perhaps explained by the legend that it was written by a guy from Coxsackie.

Pet Lover

The Pet Corner

I hope everyone's pets survived the loud storms and fireworks that welcomed July. Gracie doesn't care for thunder or the big booms, but she got through by sitting either with me or her dad. Petting her long ears and telling her everything would be okay seemed to help. Sandwich kitty made himself scarce in the house somewhere, as he usually does. Fortunately, neither seemed any worse for wear, but I know some pets do suffer from the loud noise.

July also brought some sadness, as our granddog Fifi said goodbye and crossed the Rainbow Bridge to join her little buddies. At seventeen, Fifi had a good long life, but when pets leave us, it always seems too soon. She was the last dog standing from the "gang," that included her sister, Foo Foo. Fifi will always be remembered as a sweet, funny little dog with a few peculiar habits but possessing a playful personality. R.I.P., Fifi. We'll miss your cute Pomeranian face.

The summer is busy with adoption events scheduled to help find new homes for the homeless pets in our community. CJ's This N' That Flea Market, 6681 M-139 in Berrien Springs will welcome dogs from Berrien County Animal Services on Saturday, July 18, noon to 2pm. Tractor Supply, 1383 Fairplain Dr. in Benton Harbor will hold two events: Sunday, July 26, noon to 2pm, and Sunday, August 16, noon to 2 pm. Thank you to these businesses for allowing the dogs to visit and find new families.

If you have any questions, you may contact Patience at the shelter, 269-927-5648. The shelter is very full, so here's hoping many of the animals are adopted at these events. The shelter is open on select Saturdays from 10am-1pm, July 25, August 8 and 29, and Sept. 12.

If you have another dog or dogs, please plan to bring them for a meet and greet with the new adoptee. You will also need proof of rabies vaccinations for your current dogs and also, a crate or separate cars to transport them home so it is not a free-for-all while you're driving.

Animal Aid continues with their cat and kitten adoption events at Fuzzybutz Pet Bakery in downtown St. Joseph on Sundays 1-3pm. Kitten season has brought countless kittens into rescue. Many are often sick and in need of the love and care Animal Aid fosters can give. But there are only so many fosters, and the need is great. Please, if you have a cat that is not yet spayed or neutered, have that done as soon as the vet recommends. It is the right thing to do.

Many folks will take road trips this summer, and pets often go on vacation, too. Here are a few tips for safe travel with them. Secure them in a crash-tested crate or harness in the back seat. Never leave them unattended in a vehicle. Keep on a leash when outside the car. Make sure I.D. tags, chips, and vaccinations are up to date. Bring any meds, their regular food, and water. Waste bags for cleanup are essential and paper towels for those unexpected accidents. Take a few short car trips before embarking on a long one. Stop often to stretch and for potty and water breaks. With a little pre-planning, vacation with pets can be an enjoyable time...for them and us.
